If you don't think Tucumcari merchants have the trade rusting secret take a look at their business offers in this week's News. The News offers them the medium and they use it for what it is worth as a business proposition. They tell us they get results from advertisements in this paper.

The Dawson ball team is taking them down the line all alike. They walloped Santa Fe on the Dawson diamond Sunday to the tune of 5 to 2 in favor of Dawson. Santa Fe hasn't met defeat before this season. There is not every town in New Mexico fortunate enough to have a Geo. W. Murdock to boost its ball game with the dough to land whatever is necessary to meet the requirements.

The one hundred and thirty-first anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the flag of the United States occurred on Sunday, June the 14th, 1908, and federal legislation long since set aside this day in honor of that great American emblem that floats over one of the mightiest nations in the world and over vast insular possessions.

The News is authorized to announce Horace Easley of Endee, for Assessor, subject to the will of the democratic voters at the approaching primaries. Mr. Easley always commanded an audience in the councils of his party and is considered by those who have had the pleasure of his acquaintance as capable and trustworthy, and certainly it will be acknowledged that his forty years of homage to democracy entitles him to consideration. He has been the deputy assessor under Mr. Chadwick in the Endee vicinity this year and his renditions are said to be the best in the county, clear of errors and covering every detail as outlined by the tax schedules. Easley should make a strong candidate.

The republicans of Quay county will put a full ticket in the field. If they are careful and consistent in selecting candidates that get at democratic majority some of the boys are advertising will look like cents on the 6th day of November.

In the approaching election a president and vice president of the United States, a full membership of the house of representatives, consisting of 434 members and delegates, and 30 United States senators from as many different states are to be chosen. The result, involving as it does the control of both the executive and legislative branches of the national government, with the opportunity for a change of parties and policies of transcendent importance and far-reaching consequence involving the state and nation.

Mark you, Larrazola and statehood are incompatible equations and the people of New Mexico know that his efforts in a republican congress, no matter how earnest his intentions, would be a joke. Yet, who even presumes his election? It would be speculation for a pipe artist. New Mexico is normally 8,000 to 8,500 republican and there is harmony in the delegate selection, which there is every reason to expect there will be, these figures will not be cut down any in this fall's election. Larrazola is an able man and a great man, but his political convictions are radical, even surpassing Mr. Bryan in his (Larrazola's) revolutionary, yes visionary, annunciation of government ownership, initiative and referendum, inflation, free trade, government by insurance, tion, etc. hallucination populistic and socialistic. No New Mexico will none of Larrazola. Besides New Mexicans want statehood, and with 333 congressmen to be elected and 30 senators from the 48 states, with only 13 out of the 48 voting the democratic ticket, the chances for a democratic congress are a doubtful quantity, and the senate will remain republican for six years even if hades goes democratic, so if there is a stray opinion playing anywhere around your cranium that both statehood and Larrazola are possible or even probable, put it behind you. Drop it, it's hot.

The M. B. Goldenberg Co's "re-building sale" is attracting large crowds of buyers. All this week the stores were crowded, and the large corps of salespeople and cash boys were busy quoting prices, while the customers were saving "Billie genus" as the prices quoted made every article a genuine "Meizias." The proprietors told a reporter that "the sale will continue until everything is sold."

It's better to dry up and blow away in New Mexico than to fight mosquitos and malaria in Oklahoma or drown in Kansas. Better days are coming; you never have starved. What if Quay county does not produce a bale of cotton to the acre or fifty bushels of corn this year? There's plenty of time yet in which to make fair crops, and our
